8.1.12: Describe the activities undertaken by the Institution towards practice of various types of Anushastra

Anushalya is a specialised branch of Shalyatantra that focuses on the practices of ksharkarma, Agnikarma, and Jalaukavacharan. We are doing the ksharsutra nirmanvidhi as well as hands on instruction for the kshar-pratisarana, ksharsutra procedures, in which we are dealing with fistula in Ano, warts, pilonoidal sinus. We are treating second-degree haemorrhoids utilising kshar-pratisarana. We are imparting hands on training to the practitioners, who are conducting practices in perimeter of city. Intern students get Agnikarma training to cure minor ailments such as joint discomfort, warts, sciatica, and other little diseases. In addition, we provide teaching on the creation of shalka employing Agnikarma techniques, namely using panchadhatu, suvarna, tamra, rajat, and loha. We are also teaching information about forms of Agnikarma by madhu, ghrit, taila on mansa, sira-snyayu, asthisandhi and dagdhas. The many types of Agnikarma are Valay (Circular), Bindu (Dot), Vilay rekha (Different form), and Pratisaran (Rubbing). Raktamokshan performed via leech therapy and venesection. We are providing instruction on the identification and breeding of leeches. In addition, we provide practical instruction in Jalaukavacharan for different minor ailments, dermatological conditions, chronic ulcers, diabetic wounds, baldness, and more. In addition, we provide instruction on Siravedhan karma and viddha karma, as well as the identification of suitable locations for treating specific ailments such as frozen shoulder, cervical spondylitis, lumbar spondylitis, sciatica, and several other disorders.
